Performance indicators of Supreme Audit Institutions

Jacek Jezierski
President of the Polish Supreme Audit Office (NIK)

29 March 2011
Do we really need to measure performance?

There are three things that are certain in life: birth, death and change.

- Improve management
- Upgrade accountability
- Legal requirements
How to measure performance effectively?

Continuous improvement is better than just being good.

- Performance measuring framework
- How many performance indicators we should use?
- Internal agreement
- Information systems
- Periodic review and change
Every head has its own kind of headache.

- Linked with strategic planning
- Performance indicators and performance targets
- Input, process, output and impact measures
Does an universal set of indicators exist?

SMART

- Specific
- Measurable
- Achievable
- Relevant
- Time phased

But also:
Understandable, continuous, bias proof, reliable, available, useful and precise.
How to measure the unmeasurable?

- Outputs
- Percentage of audited expenditure
- Number of audit reports published
- Financial results
- Audit recommendations
- Number of cases of disclosed fraud
- Impact
- The NIK Example
How they see you, that's how they perceive you.

- Annual reports
- Website
- Two levels of performance information in the NIK
Follow quicker what might seem a dream to you and you may find reality.

- Area for cooperation
- Continuous improvement
- Exchange of experience
- Valuable source of new impulses and ideas
- Development of performance measurement
Thank you for your attention!

Jacek Jezierski
President of the Polish Supreme Audit Office (NIK)